

Avnet Receives Gold Quill for Tech Games

At an awards ceremony in San Francisco, the International Association of Business Communicators (IABC) honored Avnet with a Gold Quill Merit Award. Avnet received this prestigious honor for the 2008 Avnet Tech Games, an annual multidisciplinary technology competition open to all colleges, institutes, and universities in Arizona. The event offers students the opportunity to apply what they learn in school to real-world scenarios. Teams of students compete to win prizes and scholarships.

The Avnet Tech Games' success is due in part to all the support received from a great team of Avnet employees. Congratulations Bryan Carter, Chris Calabro, Michelle Gorel, Teri Radosevich and Diana Sykes, as well as the many Avnet judges and volunteers.

The Gold Quill Awards is an international competition. They represent the highest level of professional acknowledgment within business communication today. This year's competition received more than 1,000 entries.
