

TS Australia Gets Active for Diabetes

The Corporate Games is a community-based event that encourages companies to support employees' pursuits for a more active, healthier lifestyle. Each year, more than 22,000 Australians compete in the Corporate Games nationally. This year, 32 TS Australia employees – including TS Australia's General Manager Gavin Lawless – participated in the New South Wales (NSW) Corporate Games!

Organized by Diabetes Australia, the NSW Corporate Games accomplished more than just getting people in shape. It raised money for the charity. All profits from the games went to support diabetes research, education, awareness and advocacy programs.

Avnet Australia's participants competed in three different sports: basketball, netball and touch football. Participants enjoyed themselves thoroughly and got a chance to take part in some friendly competition while bonding with their fellow workmates.

Unfortunately, none of the Avnet teams made it to the finals. However, they all played extremely well, scored wins and were a fantastic representation of the wonderful team spirit that Avnet embodies.

"Well done to all those who competed," says KP Tang, president of TS Asia. "We look forward to doing even better next year!"
